Observations

- a) Products of the chemical or allied industries are considered to have been sufficiently worked or processed if:
 - the working process brings about a chemical transformation; or
 - the resulting product displays qualitative characteristics different from those of the materials it contains.

To prove chemical transformation, it is sufficient to demonstrate or establish by chemical formula that molecules of the underlying substance introduced or its equivalent are found in the chemical structure of the product obtained through transformation .

The following guidelines shall be applied when interpreting the term «qualitatively new»:

- The product obtained has new features or properties or facilitates new applications through its specific nature.
- A standard of qualitative change is also an exceptional entrepreneurial effort (nature, extent and complexity of the working processes, the amount of work necessary, one's own intellectual input and skills, as well as the technical plant involved in manufacture).

Special cases that lead to difficulties in the application of these guidelines shall be decided by the Federal Office for Customs and Border Security⁹.

- b) Superficial working, such as rapid bleaching, elution, tinting, etc., shall not be considered sufficient to confer originating status.

⁹ The name of this administrative unit was changed on 1 Jan. 2022 pursuant to Art. 20 para. 2 of the Publications Ordinance of 7 Oct. 2015 (SR 170.512.1) (AS 2021 589). This change has been made throughout the text.
